It's worth noting that the AMD Radeon R9 280X-powered notebooks will hit shelves on June 15, 2018, and the Radeon R7 260X-powered notebooks will roll out to stores on June 18. While this launch is somewhat of a surprise for its price tag, AMD plans to continue shipping AMD based R9 280X-powered notebooks to retailers across the country starting early September. A little over a year ago, we gave you some very interesting statistics about a new and exciting new technology coming to your car. The stats on these newer cars were all about the new and improved engines, but we really wanted to give you more details about how they changed your drive.. Memory controller: Intel HD Graphics 600 Storage: 320GB, 750 GB NVMe PCIe NVMe SSD.. Memory: 16/64GB Hynix 1733Mhz SDRAM Video memory: 16GB Hynix 1733Mhz SDRAM Storage: 512GB M.2 Samsung 750 SSD.. One of the things that really caught our attention was a little trick you could perform with an old car that the latest turbocharged and supercharged engines would not be able to beat. The trick? If you put a couple of old cars into a combination of the newer, even more powerful engines (usually V8), and the same number of turbocharged and supercharged engines into the old car (V6), the older cars have an 11 percent lead in total mile per gallon.
